Product Description

Our 100% natural and edible Icelandic Lamb Horns are long-lasting and contain no additives, preservatives, hormones, or supplements. These nutrient-rich horns reduce tartar & plaque build-up for healthier gums and teeth while providing hours of chewing enjoyment for your dog. We source our Lamb Horns from eco-friendly, sustainable farms -- mostly small family farms -- that raise Icelandic lambs for human consumption. These farmers are required to follow the strict agricultural and inspection laws of Iceland, the U.S., and EU to ensure the meat's quality and safety meets the highest standards. All horns are cleaned, boiled, and baked within FDA, USDA, EU, and MAST standards and regulations. Icelandic lambs enjoy a free-range life, roaming pastures, feeding on wild grass and moss and drinking Iceland's mineral-rich water that is renowned for being the cleanest water in the world. Treat your furry friend to a healthy, delicious snack from the purest place on Earth.

Important Information

Safety Information
Supervise use. Horns vary naturally in color, shape, and size. It may be advisable to remove the point of the horn if it seems too pointy, but this is rarely an issue.

Legal Disclaimer
Always supervise your dog while chewing. Net Wt: 3.2-4.0 oz (90-114 g). The size, weight, shape, and color of horns vary in nature and therefore vary in our products.

★★★★★ Better than antlers

By mg55 on September 1, 2016

Verified Purchase

One of the best chews on the market right now - they do have some odor when wet, but not nearly as bad as a bully stick. They last months - we've had two going with our dog for 4 months now with minimal wear and tear. They are not as hard as antlers, and my dog seems to enjoy them more. When small pieces come off, they are soft and digestible. By contrast, my dog managed to crack a small piece of an antler off, the edge was sharp and it was hard like a rock, luckily I managed to throw it out before he could eat it. In comparison to water buffalo horns which are also popular right now - these lamb horns are thinner and more hollowed out, definitely softer, definitely have a stronger odor. My dog prefers these over water buffalo horns.

★★★☆☆ Messy, Broke Apart

By Nick F. on August 10, 2016

Verified Purchase

MESSY. This thing breaks into tiny little pieces with my two labs chewing on it. It does last a long time, but it's very thin so much so that I could bend it with my hand. It came apart and little pieces slowly shed everywhere in our living room. The dogs loved it, until our 1 year old lab threw up pieces of it he had chewed off.

★★★★★ they don't stop her up like regular bones

By T. Gibson on July 26, 2016

Verified Purchase

Our pit loves these. They last a decent amount of time, they don't stop her up like regular bones. They can have a weird odor to them when they are wet from chewing.

By Jessica Vittone on September 10, 2016

Verified Purchase

I'm sure this is great, it's just expensive and my dog ate it in less than a week. (Small puppy- chewed the heck out of it.) I'm going back to rawhides. :/
